My Life on Lincolnville

Along much of the Downeast coast, the rocky bluffs, white beaches, and woodland scenery provide the setting for a life that's as colorful as the Scarlet Letter. At least that's the case at the home of Thomas and Susan Chase. Their home was established in 1990, and they've been happy with the location ever since. It's a place that offers the perfect balance between entertainment and retirement. The couple spends their time between two houses: one in Lincolnville and another in Boothbay Harbor. The Lincolnville property is where they can enjoy the natural beauty of the area, while the Boothbay Harbor home is where they have an investment in real estate.

But the couple's passion is more than just a love for their homes. Thomas and Susan have a deep appreciation for the art of sculpture. They have been collecting and commissioning sculptures for over 20 years, and their collection is extensive. The sculptures range from traditional pieces to modern masterpieces. Thomas and Susan believe that art is an important part of any home, and they enjoy sharing their collection with others.

The couple's love for the arts is evident throughout their homes. They have a passion for making the space feel like a canvas, and they often incorporate their artwork into their decor. The couple's commitment to their home and their artwork is evident in the way they treat their homes. They take pride in their spaces and work hard to maintain them.

The couple's dedication to their homes is reflected in their involvement in the community. They are active members of the Lincolnville Art Association and frequently attend events and workshops. They also volunteer their time and resources to help support the arts in the area.
